The Needles are detached blocks of chalk situated off the western extremity of the Isle of Wight. Constant changes are taking place in their formation, new masses detaching themselves and others falling away; a notable rock, Lot's Wife, vanished in 1764. On the outermost is erected a lighthouse, 80 feet high, possessing an intermittent red and white light, visible for 14 miles.

My Dear Annie
I am writing to Southampton for my summer holiday
but am not sure that I shall go. I think I shall feel rather lonely this year without
my sister and niece.
If you could go with me
I might perhaps be able to get to Swaenage. I am rather interested in that place, but could not get there last time.

My dear Miss Drummore
2/8/11.

I hope you are well & not feeling too lonely. Sorry you could not come. You must next time. B & V are enjoying the change very much and both are feeling the better. We are all going for a drive this afternoon and the weather is ideal. We often speak of you & wish you had been with us much from you off back Alex.
